Strand	Reading: Literature
Topic	Key Ideas and Details
Standard Statements	In the previous grade band, students were expected to refer to the text for confirmation of plot details and determination of theme. Content Elaborations The focus of this topic, Key Ideas and Details, is the understanding that while the emphasis for grade 8 is still on citing text evidence in order to analyze text, the evidence itself is the primary focus. Choosing the best evidence as well as knowing why the evidence is the best now becomes the focus. Readers continue to use tools to analyze literary text and strengthen their comprehension and critical thinking skills. They analyze how the elements of setting and plot affect characters. They are able to support their understandings with specific details from the text. This analysis enables readers to infer (draw a conclusion arrived at from logical reasoning) the overall theme of the text. In the next grade band, students are expected to analyze and evaluate textual evidence in terms of quality, understand that the theme of a text is influenced by literary elements, and understand that the author conveys his or her message through characters.	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Cite the textual evidence that most strongly supports an analysis of what the text says explicitly as well as inferences drawn from the text.</li> <li>2. Determine a theme or central idea of a text and analyze its development over the course of the text, including its relationship to the characters, setting, and plot; provide an objective summary of the text.</li> <li>3. Analyze how particular lines of dialogue or incidents in a story or drama propel the action, reveal aspects of a character, or provoke a decision.</li> </ol>
Enduring Understanding	Imaginative texts can provide rich and timeless insights into universal themes, dilemmas and social realities of the world. Literary text represents complex stories in which the reflective and apparent thoughts and actions of human beings are revealed. Life therefore shapes literature and literature shapes life.

Graphic Organizers Use graphic organizers such as a herringbone pattern or semantic web to show connections between explicit facts and how they can be connected to make inferences. Work backwards so that students brainstorm and/or identify details first and then decide on a main idea.
Finding the Theme Make copies of the reading so that students can write in the margins and highlight text portions to show what characters are saying or doing that is directly related to the central theme of the text. Students must be prepared to support and defend their choices.
Double-Entry Journal Use a double-entry journal to have students write quotes or short episodes that show a character’s particular thinking, action, response, or problem. The students then write a personal reflection, question, or connection that relates to the character. Students then share their journal entry with a partner to analyze further the actions, etc. of the character.

Analyze how differences in the points of view of the characters and the audience or reader (e.g., created through the use of dramatic irony) create such effects as suspense or humor.	In the previous grade band, students were expected to know and understand an author’s use of figurative language as well as explain the structure of a particular genre. Students were also expected to know how point of view and language influence events in text. Content Elaborations The focus of this topic, Craft and Structure, is the understanding that readers extend meaning by analyzing figurative and connotative meanings of words. Readers also extend meaning by analyzing the impact of an author’s word choice including analogies (comparison of similar, familiar things) and allusions (intentional references). This topic also focuses on text structure but does so by comparing and contrasting different text structures and analyzing the differences between the two. When comparing and contrasting text structures, students will need to define an author’s style or distinctive manner of expression. An author can distinguish himself by his/her use of language (heavy or nonuse of figurative language), literary elements (an explosive resolution) and/or literary techniques (use of flashback and foreshadowing). An author’s use of point of view can also create different effects. In the next grade band, students are expected to understand the impact of an author’s use of language on text. Students will determine how text structure helps to develop and refine key concepts as well as analyze and defend an author’s point of view.

Literary text, like all creative products, demonstrates style and craftsmanship. Readers can respond analytically and objectively to text when they understand the purpose or reason behind the author’s intentional choice of tools such as word choice, point of view and structure.
Instructional Strategies and Resources
Independent Learning – Using Resources
Students complete this activity independently.
<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Basic: Use a thesaurus to determine synonyms and antonyms. Replace new words and phrases with familiar words and phrases through post-it annotation (e.g., replace gorgeous with pretty, benevolent with kind).</li><li>• Extended: After completing the basic activity, students create a visual depiction of each word as a separate text resource or as post-it annotation. Use the meanings to interpret further how the author intended the reader to feel.</li></ul>
Reflection Journal
Using poems such as “Stopping by Woods on Snowy Evening” by Robert Frost and “Annabelle Lee” by Edgar Allen Poe , the teacher will model reading the poems aloud and model the thinking process when finished with specific sections of the poem. The teacher will discuss and analyze how the structure of the poem affects the meaning of a poem. Students will work in pairs or small groups to find poems that are structurally different and then analyze the poems using a graphic organizer. Students will then reflect in their journals about their findings and will share with a partner.
“What if...” Paragraph
Read aloud a section of a short story that is suspenseful (e.g., The Tell-Tale Heart by Edgar Allan Poe ; The Dinner Party by Mona Gardner ). After general discussion about the actions of the main characters, have students complete a “What If...” paragraph. Students put themselves into the position of a minor character of the story. As a minor character, what would their thoughts, feelings, actions and conversation have been in the same event? What would each have done? Students should be able to explain their responses either orally or in writing.

How an author makes use of traditional and biblical literature when creating a new work requires an examination of the author’s use of literary elements (e.g., updated settings, modern language, modern interpretation). Students will need to analyze the different versions of text in order to evaluate how one version is different or better than the other. In the next grade band, students are expected to be able to analyze a topic or subject in two different mediums as well as analyze how an author transforms material in a specific work (e.g., the Bible or a play by Shakespeare).

Compare/Contrast Read Gary Paulsen’s Nightjohn aloud to students and ask to them keep a chart of characters, settings and important events. Then, show them the filmed version using a similar chart as they watch. In small groups, have students compare and contrast the two versions and create Venn diagrams on large chart paper to post in the room. Use these diagrams to discuss how and why the actors and directors of the film chose to deviate from the original story. A question to explore would be how the film would have been more or less effective if it had stayed true to the written text.
Compare/Contrast Use a chart of story elements such as characters, setting, main events and theme to compare and contrast a work of modern fiction, such as Change of a Dress (Cinderella Cleaners) by Maya Gold, and the Grimm or Perrault version of Cinderella . This could be extended to other works of modern fiction and other traditional stories about stepmothers and/or riches-to-rags-to-riches stories.

The distinguishing of textual evidence is important in the analysis (separating text into parts for individual study) of informational text. The reader is looking for the evidence (either directly stated or inferred) that helps the author convey the intended message to the audience. The reader also is tracing the development of the central idea and its relationship to supporting ideas. An author may develop a central idea by making connections in text among and between individuals and events. In the next grade band, students are expected to continue to cite both implicit and explicit text evidence, determine and analyze a central idea of text, and provide an objective summary of text.

Readers must understand the use of certain literary terms, such as allusion (indirect reference) and analogy (a comparison of similar things) and the impact that these terms have on a text. Readers also must understand that the structure of a paragraph and the sentences that develop it must give the reader important information that helps the author in conveying the message of the text. The topic sentence of a paragraph should state a general idea that should be developed by facts, statistics and examples. When crafting text, authors must organize information to achieve a purpose or have a desired impact. This evidence can be in the form of facts, examples, details and/or statistics and should be presented logically so that writers can clarify relationships between and among ideas. In order to convey information best, writers purposefully select and use precise language and domain-specific vocabulary as well as techniques that characterize writing styles and tones, both of which are determined by topic and audience. Writers make use of figurative language (language enriched by word images and figures of speech) in order to stir the reader’s emotions or convince the reader to come to the same conclusions about the topic as they have. A writer’s use of language also is important in identifying his or her writing style. Whether or not a writer consistently uses short, choppy sentences or long, complex sentences speaks to the writer’s writing style. The tone or attitude that a writer takes toward a subject also is important. The more convincing a writer is in the feelings and beliefs about the topic or real or imagined experience written about, the likelier it is that a reader will agree with the writer’s viewpoint.

Enduring Understanding
Writers share information, opinions and ideas by using multiple techniques and text types. This knowledge allows them to communicate in appropriate and meaningful ways to achieve their intended purpose.
Instructional Strategies
Pre-Writing Activity
When writing an informational essay, have students determine/pre-write the three to five key ideas to be covered in the essay. (This can be accomplished from a teacher-directed activity or determined independently.) On horizontally aligned paper, put each key idea statement in a separate box so that the boxes are in a row. Draw an umbrella over the boxes. Model for students the thesis statement that includes aspects of the key ideas.
Career Connection
Students will brainstorm and then research the characteristics and skills of a quality employee (e.g. Career Ready Practices or Life and Career Skills ). For their pre-writing activity, students will choose three to five of these ideas to focus their key idea statements, which will serve as the structure of their essay. Invite a Human Resources professional to the classroom to share their expectations of quality applicants. Students will realize the skills expected to be demonstrated during job interviews and in the workplace.
Sentence Connection
Using the SMARTBoard or sentence strips, create a series of short sentences that could be connected with transitional words. Have students reorder sentences, connect and include a transition word. Words may be provided in a box or on strips, or words could be determined by the students without assistance. Note the meaning change of the connected sentences, which are dependent on the transition word choice.

Standard Statements 3. Use knowledge of language and its conventions when writing, speaking, reading, or listening. a. Use verbs in the active and passive voice and in the conditional and subjunctive mood to achieve particular effects (e.g., emphasizing the actor or the action; expressing uncertainty or describing a state contrary to fact).	In the previous grade band, students were expected to expand, combine and reduce sentences and to compare and contrast the varieties of English (e.g., dialects, registers) used in stories, dramas or poems. The focus of this topic, Knowledge of Language, is that knowledge of language conventions are understood and applied in oral, auditory, written or viewed expression. When applying writing conventions to written work, students vary sentence patterns and maintain a consistent writing style (the author’s distinctive manner of expression) and tone (the author’s attitude toward his or her subject). In the next grade band, students will apply knowledge of language to understand how language functions, to make effective choices for meaning or style, and to comprehend more fully when reading or listening.
Enduring Understanding Language exists within the contexts of audience and purpose. Knowledge of language and skillful application of conventions and craft enhance expression and aid comprehension. Success in the post-secondary setting, as well as the workplace, requires effective communication.

Compare/Contrast
Using passive voice, the teacher will present an example to the class to change into active voice. This should in turn let students focus on their own writing for passive or active voice.
<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Example 1: The teacher throws the pen on the table as a visual and then asks the students Did Mrs. Elsing throw the pen? or Was the pen thrown by Mrs. Elsing? The teacher asks: What is the difference? Which is stronger? The point is to compare meaning of active and passive voice and why one is stronger than the other in certain circumstances.</li><li>• Example 2: The car was parked in the garage versus John parked the car in the garage. The teacher asks: What is the verb? Who did the parking? If the subject does the parking, then it is active voice.</li></ul>
Graphic Organizers
Students (in pairs or small groups) will be given a verb by the teacher. Pairs/groups will describe how the verb is used in the active voice, passive voice, conditional mood and subjunctive mood. Students create graphic organizers to summarize results. Students then will create a physical demonstration of how the verb looks in each of the four forms and act each one for the class.

Knowledge of word origins, word relationships, literary as well as historical context clues and reference materials aids in understanding complex words and new subject-area vocabulary. Comprehension also is enhanced when readers understand and interpret figurative language, distinguish between the dictionary meaning and the implied meaning of a writer’s words, and recognize nuances in word meaning. In the next grade band, students are expected to determine or clarify the meaning of unknown and multiple-meaning words and demonstrate understanding of figurative language, word relationships and nuances in word meaning. 6.	Acquire and use accurately grade-appropriate general academic and domain-specific words and phrases; gather vocabulary knowledge when considering a word or phrase important to comprehension or expression.
Enduring Understanding
Words are powerful. Vocabulary knowledge is fundamental for learning, effective communication and celebrating language. Success in the post-secondary setting, as well as the workplace, requires effective communication.
Instructional Strategies and Resources
Puns
The teacher gives students a list of puns. Each student picks one pun and draws a cartoon for each interpretation of the meaning. Students can create their pun interpretations using an online resource or just draw them. Students share when done.
Figurative Language
Students use themselves as the subjects of figurative language by emptying their pockets/book bags and finding an item. They then compare themselves to that object.
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Example: I am like a pen because sometimes the mistakes I make cannot be erased.</li> <li>• Extended: Students turn their figurative self-awareness statements into posters to share critical attributes of their personalities with others.</li> </ul>
